Drug device combinations are an established segment of the diagnostic and therapeutic landscapes

Convergence is changing the landscape and the demand for novel combination products

DRG's View of the Digital Health Landscape

The combined commercial opportunity for digital remote monitoring and behavior modification is estimated at over $20B

Growth and evolution of the technology sector has enabled paradigm shifts in how key decision makers solve healthcare delivery challenges

Data-driven partnerships are creating a machine learning-driven ecosystem to improve outcome control costs and improve upon value-based healthcare

Medical device companies are also partnering with payers to demonstrate differential value and improved outcomes via digital solutions

Patients are using digital resources, including smartphones at critical decision points during the course of their care

Wearable owners are more likely to engage remotely with their care team than non-owners

Physicians are increasingly relying on digital technologies to facilitate treatment planning and better outcomes

DRG's Strategic Framework for Digital Health Valuation

Smartphone Enabled Continuous Glucose Monitoring (CGM)
